A guide to the Commonwealth Aged Care Income Tested Fee

The Australian Government may charge you a compulsory Aged Care Income Tested Fee if you accept a Home Care Package and meet the current income criteria.

An Aged Care Income Tested Fee cannot be paid for by Home Care Package funds.

Prior to entering an agreement with a Home Care Package Provider, confirm if you will incur an Aged Care Income Tested Fee with Services Australia or the Department of Veteran Affairs.

If you do not provide your income details to the Australian Government, you may incur the maximum Aged Care Income Tested Fee. This will apply from the date that your agreement commences with your Home Care Package Provider.

If your financial situation changes while you are receiving care, your Aged Care Income Tested Fee may also change.

There are annual and lifetime caps that apply to the Aged Care Income Tested Fee for Home Care Packages. Once you reach a cap, you cannot be asked to pay any more Aged Care Income Tested Fees.

The cap amounts that apply to you are the amounts that are current when you reach them, not those that were current when you commenced care.

Any Aged Care Income Tested Fee that you pay while you are receiving a Home Care Package, will also be counted towards the annual and lifetime caps if you move into an aged care home.

You can apply for hardship if you encounter difficulties in paying your Aged Care Income Tested Fees.

If you are required to pay the Aged Care Income Tested Fee, it must be paid via your Home Care Package Provider.
